Letter From La Grande.

LA GRANDE, Dec. 1, 1865.

EDS. OREGONIAN:

For several weeks past the weather has been characterized by the presence of an "Oregon Mist" which left the roads in a bad condition, and in a great measure retarded the movement of freight which is passing en route for the upper country in vast quantities; but the recent sudden freeze has, in a measure, remedied the difficulty, and notwithstanding the low temperature of the atmosphere the pack and wagon trains move steadily on. The public seem to labor under a just comprehension of the true destiny awaiting this region of country.

The reports from Owyhee are of the most flattering character, and that district now occupies the Star position among the mining districts of the world, and for richness of a single lode the "Poor Man's"—stands unrivalled by any mine of its discovery ever made.

The reports from Eagle Creek are still extremely favorable, and the resources of that district are submitting to the test of development with the highest order of results, whilst new discoveries are constantly being made, and the confidence of the public in the mineral resources of this neighboring district is strong, and increasing daily.

A meeting of the U. S. Grant Gold Mining Company was held here yesterday, by the stockholders, and as several merchants of this place had purchased extensive interests in the ledges owned by the company, an incorporation was effected under the name of the La Grande Gold and Silver Mining Company. The interest of this company comprises nine ledges, four of which have been already extensively developed. The Pioneer Copper Mining Company have also filed in legal form instruments of incorporation preparatory to sinking shafts on ledges of ore that yield over a thousand pounds of the finest quality of copper to the ton. These copper-bearing lodes are situated on the slope of the mountains adjacent to Powder river, and some twenty miles nearer this point than Eagle City. The principal movers in this new enterprise, are Haggard & Shriver, who are extensive operators in the Eagle District.

The best recommendation to the merit of the Eagle mines is the willingness with which men who are acquainted with the resources of the country, invest their capital. The parties constituting the above referred to corporations comprise some of our most substantial men, among whom we would mention M. Ehrenrich, Patterson, Stockton and others. Mr. T. A. J. Chapman, who was a successful quartz operator from Owyhee, has recently returned to Uniontown, of which he was one of the founders, and being so well pleased with the ore from Eagle Creek proposes to make a liberal investment of capital in the mineral interests of the district; and also establish a local press in this valley for the furtherance of the general interest of the country. Thus it moves—and onward.

Prospective political movements in this county are exciting considerable interest, and the loyalists are determined to do justice to the name of our county—"Union."

At the November term of the Circuit Court just passed, a number of our merchants and business men were arraigned and fined for violation of the "Sunday Law," and the opposition party are doing all they can to make capital out of the affair against the Union cause, but the man who will allow local prejudices to make inroads on his loyalty deserves not the name of Republican or Democrat according to the literal signification of those terms. The institution of the Sunday Law was secured by ecclesiastical, instead of political influence, and as a necessity, we must submit to this dispensation 'till revoked by the voice of the majority. For my part, I feel that I've but little ground of complaint, as the penalty attached to this sacred law is only a fine and imprisonment, which is a small fry affair when compared to the "stoning" process in vogue during the ecclesiastical rule of past ages. Mr. Editor, I hope you will excuse me for boldly and freely expressing my views. I've been inclined to piety from my childhood and have ever cherished the highest regard for the Sabbath. So profound has been my reverence that even the song of the birds has fallen inharmonious on my ears when warbled forth on the Sabbath day—would have gagged them, and hushed their sacrilegious notes but they wisely refused to be "arrested." And there is the irreverent bee, desecrating God's appointed day by gathering honey from early dawn till twilight eve. In contemplating these aggravating and profane features of animated nature, I've grown sick with disgust and sought relief in the contemplation of things celestial, but even then, I failed to find consolation for humming and whirling and surging round their central suns, flew to the grand world, never halting a moment but ever onward—"every day and Sunday too."

But we have become insufferably tedious, yet promise to do better next time.

Yours for obedience to the requirements of an [illegible] Constitution, and the force of the land.

Emigration to Washington Territory. Letter from A. S. Mercer.

MERCHANTS' HOTEL, NEW YORK,
Oct. 23, 1865.

To the Editor of the Evening Post: In accordance with your request, and to satisfy many inquiring minds, I make a statement of the reasons why I have spent so much time and money in the endeavor to introduce a large female emigration into Washington Territory. About five years ago a desire possessed me to pay a visit to the extreme northwest portion of our country, and found that not only was Washington Territory blessed with a most congenial climate, free from the extremes of cold in Winter and of heat in Summer, but in all that tends to make a country rich in material resources it was highly favored. With a sufficient amount of agricultural land to produce supplies for a million of people, there was the finest and most extensive lumber region in the world. Already did she send fine ships, heavily freighted with lumber, to the ports of California, Central and South America, China, Japan and the islands of the Pacific. The mineral wealth of the Puget Sound district, although then almost entirely undeveloped, was known to be unlimited. The coal was not of the best quality, though a good article. The fish were a source of future wealth to the Territory, only equaled by the immense revenue of the New England fisheries. The pasture land in the eastern part of the Territory were very extensive and particularly adapted to wool growing. Most varieties of fruits in temperate climates flourished, and the grains and grasses yielded abundantly, except corn, which will make a [illegible].

Having thus viewed the resources of the country, I next sought a knowledge of the people. They were found to be highly intelligent and [illegible] possessed of many good qualities. Society was largely made up of young men from the Eastern States who had been well reared and liberally educated. But on arriving at the age of manhood they saw the avenues of trade and successful business forever closed to them, and being energetic and ambitious resolved not to plod on in the beaten path, but to go forth to the Great West and there carve out a fortune and a home for themselves. Their sisters and mothers they all left behind, and as bachelors they were monarchs of the hall and the kitchen.

"Neither [illegible]
But the [illegible] things were up on as day and the hearts of [illegible]
Then [illegible] was poor and the [illegible] lived in [illegible]"

That there were many interesting families in the country, but the mass of the population was made up of the [illegible]. Churches and [illegible], but the great [illegible] refining and moralizing element of true women was wonderfully wanting. Not that the ladies of Washington Territory were less pure or high-minded than those of any other land, but the limited number of them left the good work greater than they could perform. Young men were [illegible] in the home circles and family [illegible] memories of prayerful mothers and watchful fathers; yet distance and time were rapidly changing those memories and altering character. The tendency with both young men and [illegible] was to [illegible] their associations and in a certain degree to depart from their former course of conduct.

Thus beholding the country and the people, I determined to do all in my power to aid in the development of the material resources of the Territory and the establishment of right principles in society. With this as the motive power I have come among you to labor and thus far have been quite successful in inducing the right sort of ladies to go with me to the Territory. I appeal to high minded women to go into the West to aid in throwing around those who have gone before the restraints of well regulated society; to cultivate the higher and purer faculties of man by casting about him those refining influences that true women always carry with them, to build up happy homes and let true sunlight shine round the hearthstone. It is simply a matter of duty on the part of Eastern women to go to the West, where their presence and influence are so much needed. Almost every family in the East is represented on the Pacific slope, and you only go to protect your brothers. I would not urge you to go did I not know that the country possessed ample resources, and will eventually be a most desirable place for residence.

It is certainly some pleasure for either male or female to know that their influence is felt, and to see the effect of their good example. Those who accompany me must not expect to occupy a flower garden or to live upon sweet perfume, but must calculate that they are going into the vineyard to labor and that their labor will be rewarded. We want good men—men with willing hands and cheerful hearts also, for the country is new and holds out inducements to all who would seek a name and the means of gaining an honest living. Especially do we need the manufacturer, for most of our goods are now shipped from the East by way of Cape Horn or the Isthmus.

Hoping that this rough sketch may answer to satisfy those who would know my motive, I am, very truly, your obedient servant,

A. S. MERCER.

THE RIGHT COURSE ENTERED UPON.—The State Senate of Tennessee has been the first legislative body in the Southern States to take action upon the question of making "persons of African or Indian descent" competent witnesses in the State Courts. A bill has passed that body in which, it is said, the House will concur, under the caption "A bill to do justice and render persons of African or Indian descent competent witnesses in the Courts of this State." Its provisions are in these words:

Be it enacted by the General Assembly of the State of Tennessee, That persons of African or Indian descent, are hereby declared to be competent witnesses in all the courts in this State, in as full a manner as such persons are, by an Act of Congress, competent witnesses in all the courts of the United States, and all laws and parts of laws of this State, excluding such persons from competency are hereby repealed.

We do not see what possible objection, of any respectable character, could be made to the passage of a measure analogous to this in every State of the South. It is neatly termed "a bill to do justice," and we do not see how it is possible to secure justice without such a provision as that which it enacts.—N. Y. Times.

OFFICIAL PAPER OF THE STATE

WEDNESDAY MORNING, DEC 13, 1865

Commercial Prospects of Portland

We lately showed that our mode of trade, though the best that could have been adopted a few years ago when the business of Portland was confined entirely to this valley, is now inadequate to meet the wants and necessities of our now vastly more extensive field of operations, and that if Portland hopes to be the great commercial point from which the whole Columbia valley may be supplied, some changes are to be made in the mode by which it is proposed that this business shall be done.

Of the trade of the Columbia valley, there are already several branches, and it is not unlikely that others may hereafter spring up and grow into importance. There are several different points affording an extensive market which may be reached from here by means of the Columbia river and its tributaries. Snake river is soon to be navigated on its upper waters for a distance of two hundred miles or more, and it is believed that this new enterprise will bring us within reach of Salt Lake City by an easier and quicker route than any other now in use. We have given this matter some consideration, and will present the result of our calculations as to distance, time and cost of freight from Umatilla or Wallula to Salt Lake City, and also from San Francisco via Portland to the same destination.

From Olds' ferry to Salmon Falls (steamboat navigation)	200 "
From Salmon Falls to head of Salt Lake (good wagon road)	180 "
Across Salt Lake (by steamboat)	80 "
From lower end of Salt Lake to Salt Lake City	20 "
Total	640 ms

Of this distance there is of land travel 360 miles and of river and lake navigation 280 miles. The land travel is measured by the roads now in use, and can be shortened considerably.

Freight can be taken by steamboats and teams from San Francisco to Salt Lake City at a cost as follows:

From San Francisco to Umatilla or Wallula (by steamer)	2c per lb
From Umatilla or Wallula to Olds' ferry (teams)	4c per lb
Olds' ferry to Salmon Falls (steamboat)	2c "
Salmon Falls to Salt Lake City	5c "
Total cost of freight from San Francisco to Salt Lake City, via Columbia river	13c per lb

By the middle of March the steamboat now building on the upper Snake river will be completed. We are quite certain the experiences of next summer will prove that in the above estimates we have not stated the case too favorably for the Columbia river route.

We have made some further calculations as to time for passengers and fast freight from San Francisco via Portland to Salt Lake City as follows:

From San Francisco to Portland (steamer)	72 hours
Portland to Umatilla or Wallula (steamer)	24
Umatilla or Wallula to Olds' ferry (by land)	36 "
Olds' ferry to Salmon Falls (steamboat)	28
Salmon Falls to head of Salt Lake (by land)	36 "
Across Salt Lake	8 "
Lower end of Salt Lake to Salt Lake City	2 "
Total	206 hours,

or eight days and fourteen hours travelling time, of which only seventy-four hours is land travel.

Heavy freight from San Francisco to Salt Lake City, would easily go through by this route in thirty-five days, perhaps less time. We are not informed how long a time is usually required to transport freight through by Virginia City or Austin to Salt Lake, but it must be considerably in excess of the above estimate, as the land travel by that route is far greater than by this.

Again it is worth while to notice how vastly cheaper this route may be, than that through Nevada. As is shown by the above figures, the cost of carriage to Salt Lake via Portland, will not exceed thirteen cents per pound. The price now paid from California through to Salt Lake City, if we are rightly informed, is not less than twenty-five cents per pound in gold. Here is a difference of almost one-half in our favor. But conceding that the difference in our favor is much less than this, we should still have an immense advantage.

There is a large scope of country on Bear river and on the tributaries of Snake river, above Fort Hall, which is being rapidly settled. This region comprises Oneida county, Idaho Territory. The county seat is located at Soda Springs. Quartz mines are being rapidly discovered in that district, and prospects there are very flattering. This locality may also be reached from here. True, it is a long distance away, but it is as near us as any other point from which it can be supplied. We are firmly of opinion that energy and enterprise will open a market for us at Salt Lake City and in other portions of country which lie in that direction.

We have thus called attention to one of the new fields of trade into which we may not unreasonably hope to enter. We shall give this subject further consideration hereafter.

CHEAP PARDONS.—The latest dispatches inform us that pardon seekers still throng the Executive mansion, and that hundreds of them, comprising all classes of rebels, are still meeting with all the success they desire in obtaining impunity for their crimes. The restoration of leading rebels to political power is going on with a greater rapidity than baffled traitors had ever hoped for. The government of the Southern States is gradually, yet rapidly, falling into their hands. A rebel General is Governor of Mississippi, and is officially recognized as such by the President. A rebel Congressman is Governor of South Carolina; and the remainder of the Southern States, in the selection of their civil officers, are fast imitating these examples. The same class of men who governed the South before the war, and who began the late conflict of arms, are, as it now seems, to rule that section hereafter. This is the result of the Government forgetting that treason is a crime. It is just what we might expect to follow in the wake of the system of cheap pardons. This policy we regard as the great error of the present plan of reconstruction. The men who have distinguished themselves by a life long hostility to this Government, cannot safely be trusted with power now. The time will inevitably come when the country will find that its strange clemency and unprecedented magnanimity will cost it a fresh struggle to subdue those whom it but lately, and at a terrible sacrifice, succeeded in putting under its feet. These men are natural enemies to their country, and it is not in human nature for them ever to become reconciled to it. To restore them to power now is to raise up a fallen, but yet malignant enemy, and place again in his hand the weapon with which he is invited to strike.

"It is not, nor it cannot come to, good."

IS IT THE END?—The indictment against Gen Palmer in Kentucky, it appears has been dismissed. The Court holds that slavery no longer exists in that State. This decision is based upon the fact that slavery is abolished throughout the United States by the Constitutional Amendment. It is evident that the Court considers the ratification of the Amendment by three fourths of the adhering States, sufficient to give validity to the measure. Slavery is abolished in Kentucky, its last place of refuge. We think we are not premature in saying that the great measure is by this time fully consummated in all the States.

ROBBERY.—A young man named Trickle was arrested at the Dalles two days ago charged with having robbed a miner named Alby of $1,045 on the road from Granite Creek to Umatilla some ten days since. After his arrest he confessed the robbery. A purse containing about $700 of the money was recovered.

General News

WASHINGTON, Dec 9.—The belief gains strength that Congress will remodel the municipal court in the District of Columbia and introduce negro suffrage. To oppose this, the citizens are working to have their charter revoked, and have the municipal government placing their affairs entirely in the hands of Congress.

Minister Burlingame will return to China in a few days with new instructions.

James Murdoch, the Shakesperian reader, fell into an apoplectic fit at Grover's theatre last evening. It is believed he will survive.

The General Land Office to day transmitted to Oregon City, Oregon, 10 grants for claims grown out of ancient settlers in Oregon, being under a donation entitlement of the State, which sets aside 23,000 acres for pioneers and old settlers.

A Mandamus case vs. the Secretary of the Treasury, involving the question whether courts can compel that officer to disburse money, has been taken to the United States Supreme Court on a writ of error and will be decided in a few days.

CHICAGO, Dec 9.—Memphis newspapers record a shocking tragedy at Brooksville, Mississippi, on the 3d. A young man named Charles Thompson, son of a wealthy planter, shot and killed his mother, brother and three sisters, and wounded his father and one sister. He had returned from South America a year since and exhibited evidence of citizenship of Peru. The property was deeded to him for protection. Lately he has been organizing a company for Brazil and selling off the stock of the plantation. His mother was taking legal measures to restrain him when it resulted as above stated. He went to a flat boat in the Tombigbee loaded with cotton, and was putting off when arrested. He is now in jail at Macon.

A fire in Mobile on the 6th destroyed the office, engine house and derrick of a large boarding house, loss, $100,000. A young man named Bonner, clerk of Nobal & Co., died of fright before he could be removed. Several occupants of the boarding house suffered and were narrowly rescued.

The Louisville Courier was reissued on the 4th. The Richmond Examiner was revived on the 4th. F. M. Bruce, late member of Congress from Kentucky, now a builder at Augusta, has presented John C. Breckinridge with one hundred thousand dollars. Gen Sherman is making a tour of his military department. He was at Memphis on the 5th, and would leave the next day for Little Rock. The Southern press has called a convention at Memphis on the 20th to form an association for telegraph news. Gen. Beauregard is now at New Orleans attached to the great Northern Railroad. He publishes a card in the New Orleans Times of the 5th, in which he says: When my native State, Louisiana, required my services, I drew my sabre without hesitation, as soon as I would to rescue my mother from the torrent, without thought of his own safety. In order to escape the hatred of Northern fanatics, I thought of taking refuge in Brazil, but the generous sentiment expressed by President Johnson toward the Southern States persuaded me and a great many other Confederate officers and soldiers to remain in Louisiana. I prefer to live here poor and forgotten rather than be endowed with honor and riches in a foreign country.

John M. Withers was elected Mayor of Mobile on the 4th, but he has been informed that he will not be permitted to exercise the functions of the office until pardoned.

The reported negro insurrection in Tippah county, Mississippi, was a tempest in a tea pot.

The correspondent of the Memphis Appeal of the 5th says: There was little or no resistance offered in disarming the negroes and only one freedman instead of twelve lost his life. He was innocently hunting squirrels and was shot. One hundred and twenty small arms were taken from the negroes and three of the supposed ring leaders lodged in jail. There is no ground for uneasiness or distrust. Several negroes at Canton, Mississippi, recently overcame the jailor and escaped from prison. One was killed by the guard.

The Mississippi Legislature has created a bureau to supply wooden legs to wounded soldiers, the legs to be made in the South.

The Government has seized the Mobile and Ohio Railroad from Corinth south, until the Government cotton is got out of the country before it is stolen.

LOUISVILLE, Dec 9.—Judge Johnston in the Circuit Court to day, dismissed the indictment against General Palmer on the ground that a requisite number of State Legislatures having ratified the Constitutional Amendment all the criminal and penal laws of Kentucky regarding slaves were of no effect. Gen Palmer has therefore issued a military proclamation that slavery has ceased to exist in Kentucky and advises the colored people to appeal to the Courts for redress, if the public conveyances shall disregard their rights to travel.

HALIFAX, Dec 8.—The following additional news by steamer Asia has been received:

The British Government has offered a reward of £1,000 for the capture of Stephens, the Fenian Head Center of Ireland. It also offers £300 for information that may lead to his arrest, with a free pardon to any person or persons who may give such information. Nothing is known as to the mode or manner of Stephen's escape, except that his liberation must have been effected by officials.

A petition is being signed at Liverpool to the mayor, to call a meeting to consider the condition of affairs in Jamaica.

Letters from Paris confirm the previous statement that great pressure is being made on Napoleon's Government for the withdrawal of the French troops from Mexico.

A report was current in Paris that Spain had notified the British and French governments of its willingness to accept the mediation of European powers in the Chilean difficulty.

Madrid papers demand an international arbitration for the settlement of its affairs.

A Paris journal says Napoleon had promised the deputation that waited upon him that measures would be taken for the protection of the French in Chili.

The reply of the British Foreign Office to the Imperial deputation of London merchants states that instructions were sent on the 18th to the British minister at Madrid and the Imperialists may feel assured that Her Majesty's government will use their best endeavors to bring about a speedy termination of the present disadvantageous state of things.

NEW YORK, Dec 10.—A letter from Richmond says that in view of the disorganized condition of the late slave population there is great uneasiness among the people in the several districts. Numerous officers have been appointed to recruit volunteers, but not a single recruit has been obtained. It is thought an organization can only be effected through a compulsory draft.

General Logan has not yet come to a decision regarding the acceptance of the Mexican mission. He is awaiting the return of General Grant before he decides.

The Louisiana Legislature have elected Randall Hunt and Henry Boger United States Senators.

The committee to whom the subject was referred in the Mississippi Legislature have voted adversely to the Constitutional Amendment. There is hardly a doubt of its adoption by the Legislature notwithstanding the adverse report. It is understood that the constitutionality of the Congressional test oath is now before the Supreme Court, on the application of A. H. Garland of Arkansas whose credentials will be presented on Friday next.

NEW YORK, December 9.—The magnificent new Stock Exchange to be occupied by the Board of Brokers, which has been constructing on Wall, Broad and New streets for a year or two, was formally opened by the Board to day.

CHICAGO, Dec 10.—The Atlanta Intelligencer of the 8th says that Provisional Governor Johnson has been directed by the President not to issue certificates to the Congressional Delegation nor permit Gov. Jenkins to be inaugurated. The organization of the Georgia Legislature which convened on the 4th is as follows: President, Wm. Gibson, of Augusta; Clerk, Col. J. B. Weems, of Wilkes; Speaker of the House, Thos. Hardeman, of Bibbs county; Clerk, James D. Waddell, of Polk county.

There was no opposition to Alex. Stephens for Senator for the long term, which he consents to take. The short term will be contested by Gov. Johnson and J. L. Hill.

The Augusta Chronicle says: No more pardons are likely to come to Georgians, but that some already granted will probably be revoked.

Bishop Quintard, of Tennessee, has published a petition for a memorial to the Episcopal Church to commemorate the deeds and death of Confederates there.

The trustees of St. Johns College, Annapolis, Md., elected Henry Barnard of Stratford, Conn., President. This college has not been in operation since 1861.

CHICAGO, Dec 10.—The Congressional ceremonies over the late lamented Senator Collamer will take place on Thursday.

The Indiana Senate by a tie vote defeated the amendment striking out the section of the State Constitution prohibiting negroes residence in that State.

The bill for a prohibitory liquor law was lost in the Indiana House of Representatives.

Two men have been arrested and indicted for the murder of the Ross family at Lebanon, Ohio last winter. It will be remembered that a family of persons were found murdered and no apparent cause existed for the crime or trace of the criminals. On the night of the 6th inst the indictments had been filed in the County Clerk's office, which was robbed of all the papers in the case. A special grand jury was called for new indictments.

The colored people had a jubilee yesterday over the decision of Judge Johnston that slavery is abolished in Kentucky. Three thousand assembled in the evening and were addressed by Gen. Palmer. The Commonwealth Attorney filed an appeal from Johnston's decision.

Philip Tompert, mayor of Louisville has been impeached by the Board of Aldermen and will be tried on Monday for refusing to sign an ordinance granting street railroad privileges, after the same had been passed over his head. A public meeting was held to sustain the mayor, and a committee appointed to ask an amendment of the city charter, so that in the event of a vacancy the election shall devolve upon the people. The Journal denounces the railroad scheme as a great swindle, and intimates that the Mayor was right in accusing the Aldermen of being bought up. The case of Col. James Inquis, accused of procuring an abortion, which resulted in the death of a woman, was called in the Circuit Court yesterday, but while the trial was progressing, Capt. Gibbons, one of the counsel for defense was taken severely ill. The case was continued to next term.

CHICAGO, Dec 10.—The eight hour leaguers had a torch light procession last evening. Printers, boiler makers, stone cutters and other tradesmen practiced their arts during the procession. There is much comment on this question throughout the Eastern States and particularly in Massachusetts.

The widow of Stonewall Jackson is reported to be in destitute circumstances.

The official vote of North Carolina at the recent State election is as follows: Worth, 32 429, Holden [illegible] 880.

The number of rebel prisoners captured and paroled during the war was 420,000. Union prisoners amounted to 157,000.

The establishment of Ely & Co., Troy, New York, was entered by burglars on Thursday and the safe robbed of $20,000 Government securities, $1,000 in currency and $2,000 in specie.

An old man and wife named Crandall, living in Otsego county, New York, were murdered on Friday last. The man was shot and his wife's brains beaten out with a bludgeon. They had $35,000 in the house, but the murderers failed to get possession of it.

The receipts into the State Treasury of Illinois for the year ending November 30, were $6,219,989 from the regular receipts of revenue. The disbursements were $5,778,000 including $1,994,680 for payment of interest, and $1,903,342 on the principal of the State debt. Available balance in the treasury, $2,372,068.

The Eastern papers speak of the continued spread of small pox among the negroes, particularly in North and South Carolina. Some of the Sea Islands are suffering severely.

A white soldier and a negro were killed at Natchitoches a few days since by a squad of the Nineteenth Pennsylvania cavalry. The victims were compelled to dig their own graves before being shot. They were deserters from Texas.

Benton Barracks at St. Louis has been ordered to be discontinued, and the property turned over to the Quartermaster.

CHICAGO, December 10.—The troubles in the Fenian camp are on the increase. On the 7th, the Senate in session found a writ of impeachment against O'Mahony, President of the Irish Republic, charging him with perfidy and malfeasance in office. The charges were proven, and he was given twenty four hours to answer, he not paying any attention.

The new commissioners Gen. Curtis, Col. Simpson and Prescott Smith, appointed by the President to examine the newly opened sections of the Union Pacific Railroad in Kansas, reported that the road has been completed for sixty miles from the Eastern terminus at Wyandotte. The first 40 miles were accepted by the Government two months ago. The portion just examined is the third section of 20 miles and is said to be a better road than the first 40 miles. The Company is about building a branch railroad from Lawrence to Leavenworth and expect to have the main line completed to Fort Riley 136 miles from Wyandotte by July next. The Leavenworth branch will be finished by the first of May. There is now a continuous line of railroad from the Capital of the Union to the capital of Kansas, about 1,300 miles.

WASHINGTON, Dec 10.—The Mexican Legation give out that they have private letters from El Paso, saying the Imperial troops have all been withdrawn from Chihuahua in the direction of Vera Cruz. Their sanguine interpretation is that it is Maximilian's intention to send them back to France.

The Statesman illustrates its style of Unionism by reproducing the following specimen of Copperhead ribaldry. How do active members of the Union party like be classed by the "conservative" organ along with traitors and secessionists? We quote from the Statesman of last week:

"The extremists at the North and the extremists at the south are bound to keep the two sections at war, and they will, if their ideas are not carefully headed off, plunge the whole country into a state of anarchy."

WHOSE COUNTRY?—"The African race was never intended to be a permanent and future part of the Government."—Oregon Statesman.

"This is your country as well as anybody else's country. This is the country in which you should expect to do something by your example, in civil life as you have done in the field."—President Johnson to the Colored Soldiers.

There were nineteen deaths from cholera on board the Atlanta, lately arrived at New York from London.

Dr Chapman was called to attend the [illegible] the woman is doing as well as might be expect[illegible] is still in a very low condition. Her infant about [illegible] weeks old, was most miraculously preserved from a [illegible] fall, probably from the efforts of the mother to [illegible] it to one side before the convulsive strife had assert[illegible] control over her system.

[illegible] IN MINING.—A party of miners have [illegible] had constructed at the boat yard of Mr. Bruce in [illegible] a batteaux, 25 feet long, 5 feet deep and 7 feet [illegible] with which two of them Mr. Frazar and Mr Fuller, [illegible] to-day for some point above Colville. The boat is [illegible] to carry the supplies for the party of four men [illegible] with three sets of oars [illegible] 200 fathoms of [illegible] line, etc., and will make up some of the streams [illegible] into the Columbia above Colville. They will [illegible] their boat and supplies by public conveyance, [illegible] and teams, until they reach the stream they [illegible] These gentlemen messrs Frazar and [illegible] have spent the past season in the region for which [illegible] start to-day, and are confident of a big strike next [illegible] as is evident from their preparation. Should [illegible] their progress they have made arrangements for [illegible] on the ice, and with runners under their [illegible] will push on to their destination. Such enter[illegible] its reward.

[illegible] TRIP.—Steam was raised in the boiler of the [illegible] G. Hunt yesterday and the now new and pretty [illegible] made her trial trip, giving entire satisfaction. The [illegible] has not permitted the Hunt to be as finely fin[illegible] as the company would like, but nevertheless she [illegible] and will be more serviceable than ever. The [illegible] of steamboat construction has attained a higher [illegible] in Oregon than in other localities in the [illegible] Eastern people understand building light-draught [illegible] in order the requirements for a trade [illegible] of other States will do well to adopt. The Hunt [illegible] been so materially changed that her most familiar [illegible] would scarcely recognize her when once in the [illegible]

THE AMERICAN UNITARIAN ASSOCIATION.—The monthly [illegible] of the above Association for October 1865, has [illegible] at this office. The social changes affecting [illegible] the [illegible] life of New England towns is treated of by Henry W Bellows D. D., and a report of Rev Cal[illegible] missionary in Charleston S. THE NICOLSON PAVEMENT.—That portion of Front street [illegible] by the putting down of the Nicolson pavement [illegible] elegant and at [illegible] the advantages of a clean [illegible] street when not encumbered by mud. The pro[illegible] of Sacramento are moving for the introduction of the [illegible] pavement in that city.

THE LECTURE LAST EVENING.—Judge Shattuck delivered [illegible] on Peter the Great last evening in the [illegible] to a fine audience. The address is spoken of as [illegible] most excellent. It adds much to the reputation of [illegible] Judge already earned in this city. We intend soon [illegible] the address.

NEW YEAR ANNOUNCE.—Messrs Barman Bros thankful for the patronage they have received during the year [illegible] about to close, beg leave to ask for a continuation [illegible] and present their compliments to their patrons [illegible] in our advertising columns.

COLD.—The weather has taken a severe cold since Fri[illegible] Yesterday was as clear and pretty a day as [illegible] could desire but a pressing wind and falling [illegible] told that it was not adapted to the [illegible] if our [illegible]

THE UPPER RIVER.—Messenger West reports the weather [illegible] very severe up the Columbia yesterday [illegible] there were no indications of ice in the stream between the Dalles and this city.

Capt. Powell of Company D 1st Oregon In[illegible] arrived in town last evening. His Com[illegible] is now on the way from Camp Lyon to Van[illegible] The boys will be mustered out of the service within a week. Most of them are res[illegible] of Portland and will be gladly welcome[illegible] We hope and believe that our [illegible] consideration of their services and true deserts will be ready to afford them opportunities to se[illegible] permanent places and steady occupation [illegible] their employment in the field is at an end.

FROM COLVILLE.—A gentleman arrived in this city from Colville, on the 7th. He brings news [illegible] previous mining reports from the Upper Columbia. He had about $30 000 of gold [illegible] the mines on the Columbia of which $7 000 [illegible] the new mines. In quality this last re[illegible] the Kootenai gold, and is very heavy and [illegible] The only question now is upon the extent [illegible] discovery which we shall know in due [illegible] Mountaineer.

FROM THE CAPITAL.

Special Session of the Legislature

(SPECIALLY EXPRESSLY FOR THE OREGONIAN.)

SALEM Dec 9th 1865

HOUSE

Prayer was offered by Rev. Dr. Wythe.

[illegible] to ratify the Constitutional Amendment [illegible] was taken [illegible]

A message [illegible] from the State Treasurer was re[illegible] [illegible] of the [illegible] to [illegible] a [illegible] Messrs [illegible] Underwood and Murphy.

The following [illegible] the following bills: To extend the jurisdiction of Justices of the Peace. To regulate [illegible] [illegible] to protect [illegible] animals. To repeal the Homestead Law.

BILLS

A bill was introduced under suspension of the rules by Mr Hogue for the relief of N. H. Gates, appropriating the ordinary mileage and per diem of members of the Legislature for that purpose, passed the second reading and referred.

Mr Underwood offered a resolution that no new business be introduced after the 11th inst.

Adjourned to two o'clock P. M.

AFTERNOON

A message was received from the Senate refusing to concur in the House amendments to the resolution to ratify the Constitutional Amendment.

Mr Tate moved to [illegible] Lost.

Mr Fay moved to appoint a committee of conference. Agreed to and Messrs Fay and [illegible] were appointed on the part of the House.

A message was received from the Senate announcing the refusal of that body to concur in the House amendments to the resolutions relating to the death of Mr Lincoln.

Mr Fay moved to recede. Lost.

Mr. Gillette moved to appoint a committee of conference, carried and Messrs Gillette and Tate were appointed.

Message from the Senate, transmitting a joint resolution to adjourn sine die on the 16th inst was laid upon the table.

The bill to repeal the militia act was read a second time and referred to the committee on military affairs.

Mr Fay presented a resolution instructing the Oregon delegation in Congress to procure if possible an appropriation for a military road from Klamath Lake to Ruby City I. T. This route would follow the course taken by Col Drew in 1864 passing by Goose Lake and Surprise valley.

Mr Underwood stated that an appropriation had already been made to build a military road to the South eastern boundary of Oregon. It runs very near Klamath Lake where there is already a good wagon road. To pass this resolution would be practically asking Congress for an appropriation to build a road already provided for.

Mr Fay thought that the road from Eugene City to the southern boundary of the State was a monopoly. As there was a central military military road he desired a southern military road. The interests of the two roads clash. Let the matter go before Congress where disinterested parties could arbitrate the matter. He desired a free military road and did not consider the central one such a road. It was a monopoly and antagonistic to the State Constitution.

Mr. Underwood stated that the survey of the Central Road had already been made and the diagrams were on their way to Washington. It was located on Drew's trail from Steen's mountain to Sprague's river. Ruby City is the terminus of the Oregon Central Military road. The survey was already made and the land located so that this resolution could not interfere with the interests of the company at all but he thought it was asking too much from Congress.

Mr Fay proposed to amend so as to ask only an appropriation of money.

Mr Underwood agreed to that for he knew Congress had quit appropriating money for such purposes.

Mr Fay—Then I wont put it in. The question is, shall the people of Southern Oregon pay tribute to Eugene City or any other place? The people of that part of the State have asked very little either from the State or Congress. There is plenty of land there, and we desire to have it opened to settlement.

Mr Fay—I hope the motions will not pass for the gentleman's name will be upon it.

Mr. Underwood—I call the gentleman to order—he is impugning motives.

Mr Fay—I take it all back, but I don't like that way it is going. I fear I will never again see my beloved resolution.

Mr Parker moved to amend so as to appoint a committee of five. Agreed to.

The motion was carried, and Messrs Parker Fay, Underwood, Powell and Gillett, were appointed.

THE COLUMBIA STEAM TUG

Mr Gillette by consent of the House introduced a joint memorial to the Legislature of Washington Territory, asking that body to enact a similar law to ours for the protection of the steam tug at the bar of the Columbia river. By a law of the last session of the Oregon Assembly the Pilot Commissioners were authorized to withdraw the commissions for the old pilots in favor of any one who would build a steam tug. This had been done and the steam tug Rithbone is doing duty on the bar. But there being no such law on the part of Washington Territory, the commissions of the old pilots from the Commissioners of that Territory still exist and both sets of pilots are doing service on the bar. It is well known that they cannot both live one must be withdrawn. It is to the interest of the public that the steamtug remain as she enables sail vessels to make regular trips whereby passengers and freight are transported at greatly reduced rates compared to the charges of the steamships. The memorial was adopted.

Mr Tate gave notice of his intention to introduce a bill to incorporate the City of Albany.

Mr Fay gave notice of his intention to introduce a bill to tax Chinese, Negroes and Kanakas. Also to transfer the sum of ten thousand dollars from the military to the general fund.

Adjourned till Monday at 9 o'clock, A. M.

JACOB COLLAMER.—This distinguished individual is as we learn by telegraph now no more. We are not apprised of the time of his death but the inference is that it occurred five or six days ago. Senator Collamer was born at Troy N. Y. 1792. His father was a soldier of the Revolution. In early life young Collamer went to Vermont and was graduated at Burlington in that State in 1810. He studied law and practiced many years in various parts of the State. He sat in the Legislature for several terms. In 1833 he was elected Justice of the Supreme Court of Vermont and in 1843 was chosen to represent the second district of that State in Congress. He was twice re elected but in 1848 declined to be again a candidate. In 1849 he was appointed Postmaster General by President Taylor. He was first chosen to the U. S. Senate in October 1854, and was re elected in 1860. His term would have expired in March 1867. He was a man of uncommon powers of mind and his influence throughout his State was very great. He did much to build up the Republican party and to strengthen and intensify the anti slavery sentiment of the country.

Victorine

The Count de Cardoville had been married ten years. He was handsome, and occupied not only a high rank in society, but was looked up on with respect by the statesmen of the day. He had attained a great position, and for the last five years had been minister at the Court of Vienna. But all these things of happiness were nothing to the Count in comparison to the treasure he possessed in his wife. For her alone was he ambitious; for her alone he valued the honors he had attained, and the fame which the world accorded him.

Madame de Cardoville, far a wonder for the infatuation of man does not greatly merit it—served her husband's idolatry. Beautiful, high principled, talented without a shade of vanity, utterly and entirely devoted to her husband, Helene de Cardoville's life had never known a shadow. At twenty seven she was quoted as the most lovely woman at the Austrian Court, though each year brought forth young and lovely girls aspirants to the highest honors of such a sway.

One day—it was summer—they had left Vienna for a chateau the Count de Cardoville had taken for the last few summers, and looked upon as his own, a lady was announced wishing to see the Countess.

"Yes, dearest, Victorine! you have not forgotten me, then?"

"Never! how could I forget you—almost my sister!—but—"

"You pause—you hesitate—ah, I understand you—I am sadly changed."

"Yes, dear Victorine, you have suffered—you are in mourning. Oh! you have believed in me and trusted me, you are come to me for consolation."

"Helene, I have not a friend in the world. You know of my imprudent marriage, it is over. I am a widow, but ruined in fortune, health and spirits, and I thought of you as I have come to you from Sweden, where, in our poverty, my husband had hidden our misery and our disgrace."

"You shall never remember any more, the years that are gone. Oh, Victorine, we shall make you happy. We will bring back your beauty, your bright high spirits and even the years that have weighed so heavily on you shall be obliterated. Come—let me bring you to my husband." Here the Countess suddenly stopped and an expression of divine happiness diffused itself over her features. "Oh, Victorine," she continued, "what have I done to Heaven that it should have made me so blessed, whilst you have been wasting your youth and beauty in tears and wretchedness? Come, come, it will be returning some of the goodness heaped upon me to make you forget your past life."

Monsieur de Cardoville received his wife's friend with the greatest cordiality, friends were ever most welcome to him, and when he heard Victorine's past misery, and her utterly deserted position, he proposed to his wife that their home should be hers.

Helene looked up at him with tenderness and gratitude; yet even at that moment a strange feeling came over her. Perhaps it was that she dreaded any change—change must bring unhappiness—for her present life was one to which no happiness could be added. But hastily she threw off the thought as unworthy of her. What, after all, was a mere fancy compared with the feelings of her poor friend, Victorine?

Mme. Von Sternberg was established therefore in the chateau. Time had faded but not obliterated her beauty, her grace, her wit, a strange fascination about her manner it had left untouched, so that Victorine added rather to the charm of their home than took away from it. Victorine too, was a widow. Madame Cardoville, though admired and far more beautiful, was known to be so deeply attached to her husband, that no impression could be made on her heart. Victorine though neither a flirt nor a coquette, had the power and the tact to draw around her the most distinguished of the distinguished men who filled the saloons of the French ambassador.

"I am delighted that Victorine is with us," said Helene one day to her husband, "she has the power of amusing you, and I think our home has been gayer and pleasanter since she has been in it."

"Most decidedly, and how handsome she has grown, that dark, sarcastic, bitter look has utterly fled from her face."

"She is very beautiful," said Helene, "in our convent we used to call her Lucretia."

"Borgia?" said the Count, "that was scarcely a compliment!"

"No, Lucretia the Roman matron; she was aged at sixteen so dark and dignified."

"She is a most fascinating woman, capable of a desperate deed, if not a heroic one, I should not have called her Lucretia, I think. There is more of the myst[illegible] than of the ancient Italian about her."

"You don't mean Lucretia Borgia?"

"No, only in fascination."

Meantime, Madame Sternberg was pondering in her mind what was to become of her, for, to accept a permanent home with Madame de Cardoville, of course, could not be thought of. She had said she was ruined; that was a figurative way of speaking, which being put in plain language, merely meant that Madame Sternberg could not live in splendor or luxury, and could not maintain the position in society, which she thought the only one worth having. Society, admiration, luxury, these were the elements of Madame Sternberg's happiness, a happiness independent of the heart; one that money can procure, therefore the easiest attained, for money though difficult to obtain, is at the command of mere human means, and therefore attainable to all. Of course Victorine knew she might chance to make a good marriage. She was handsome, she knew that, and few men could resist her when she chose to exert her powers of fascination; but since she had been with Helene, she had rather avoided the open expression of admiration of those around her than sought it. Victorine was no timid, innocent young girl, to wonder why she was so changed—she read her heart aright and read it at once. She knew that she avoided all the men around her from their inferiority to one, for whom each day she felt an increasing passion, and that man was no other than Horace de Cardoville. Although she did not struggle against this passion, she had still feeling if not principle, enough to abstain from any manifestation of any preference, and to disguise alike from Horace and his wife the feeling that would [illegible] destroyed their friendship, and driven her from their home. She did not even try to attract M. de Cardoville, to him her manner was cold, strictly polite, that was all.

"I'm afraid your friend Victorine doesn't like me, Helene," said M. de Cardoville, "she is so very formal to me."

"I have often wondered whether you liked her, for you don't seem to progress at all in your friendship."

"Oh, I like her very well, but Helene, we are not so often alone as we were. You know how few hours the world and my duties leave me. I cannot bear to lose one of them. Is Mme. Sternberg going to remain entirely here?"

"No, my dear Count," said Mme Sternberg advancing. "Excuse me, I only heard the last sentence, but it was so comprehensive that I could not help answering you. I am not going to trespass on you, I mean Helene's kindness, longer than another week. Then you will return to Vienna, and I shall have found some obscure retreat where I shall be no longer a trouble to my friends."

Helene, bursting into tears, threw her arms around Victorine; as for the Count, covered with confusion, he stood gazing on his guest, who stood pale and erect, her quivering lips only showing her emotion, her large dark eyes striving to restrain her tears. He felt profoundly humiliated; humanely he thought his words had been cruel, but all apology he knew would make them worse. For the first time Mme Sternberg assumed an interest in his eyes. For the first time he felt an eager desire to offer her a brother's friendship and protection. Now, under the insult she had received, all he could do was to leave her to the consolation Helene's tact and affection could offer her.

"I am not offended," said Madame [illegible] Sternberg. "I am only reproved and reminded of my stern fate which till now I had forgotten. Come Helene, do not weep, remember you must look beautiful to-night for his sake. Come, I will not intrude my miseries upon you. I will forget all this, and when I am far away, in my solitude I shall remember only your kindness."

Mme. Sternberg withdrew to her room. That evening, Helene and Horace were to appear at a court ball given at this unduo season for the reception of a foreign prince, traveling incognito. It was only in their official capacity that the count and countess thought the invitation imperative, and only on that account that they left the chateau for a ride of ten miles to Vienna and ten miles back in the middle of the night for Helene insisted on not remaining in the close city one day longer than she was obliged to.

"The ride home will be the pleasantest part of it, Horace, just fancy the delicious feeling of the pure morning air coming from that heated atmosphere."

Mme. Cardoville was as usual, the most beautiful woman at the ball, her regal yet feminine beauty was enhanced by the splendor of her dress and the wonderful Cardoville diamonds which were celebrated all over Europe. Her husband though he loved her deeply, could not but be flattered by the admiration she excited, and as he threw his arm around her and drew her towards him as they returned home, he told her he wondered how he had preserved that such a being should love him and be his, "for, indeed, dearest Helene you are an angel—there now, not many wives hear that from their husbands after ten years marriage."

"I hope not to be an angel for at least forty or fifty years for your love, Horace, makes life a heaven here."

The carriage stopped as she uttered those words, she stepped into the hall where only one servant had remained up to see them. The Count entered his library for a few minutes to deposit papers and dispatches he had received from Vienna, but as he did so he paused for an instant watching the graceful figure of his wife passing like an airy vision in the gray dawn up the stairs and murmuring her name with deep love and tenderness.

Like a vision she had indeed faded from his sight—and forever. When he entered the dressing room a strange pungent odor brought a choking sensation to his throat, and a giddiness to his brain. Still he advanced, for he saw Helene seated in a large arm chair near the open window.

"She has fallen asleep," said he. "I must awaken her, for the atmosphere of the room is not natural. It is, yes, it is ether or chloroform—how has this been produced?—[illegible]" By this time the Count had reached his wife.

"Helene," said he, placing his hand on her shoulder. "Helene?"

But Helene stirred not. The Count bent over her still repeating her name, yet she did not move. The dawn was still too gray to light the room distinctly. Hastily he brought a light from the bed room where one was always burning and then he gazed with anxiety on his wife. She was still and her large eyes were wide open. The satin robes were still around her but they were all dabbled and disfigured by blood that flowed over them. Horace threw his arms around his wife and a sharp cry re-echoed through the house bringing all its inmates in a few moments to the terrible scene.

The Countess was quite dead. The cause of her death was evident—some malefactor tempted by the jewels the Countess had worn had concealed himself in her room, awaiting her return, then by an instantaneous application of chloroform rendered her insensible. Probably she had stirred, and that had cost her her life. The jewels were gone, and the thief had escaped even in those fifteen minutes that Helene had been alone, for his plans were admirably laid. It was Mme Sternberg who took Helene from the arms of the Count. Tenderly she disrobed her, no profane hand did she allow to touch her till she lay in the midst of flowers in her coffin. Then firmly and gently she went into the Count's room and led him to the room where she had robbed death of its horror, and where Helene lay so calm, peaceful and beautiful that the Count remembering how he had called Helene an angel and how now she was one in Heaven, fell on his knees beside her, and for the first time, burst into tears.

The day of the funeral, Mme Sternberg, without one word of farewell to the Count, left the chateau. Horace felt very desolate, but he recalled his unmanly words, and felt that Victorine was right. All the efforts of the police were vain. No traces were ever found either of the murderer or the jewels. The Count unable to endure the scene of his misfortune totally unfit for his official duties, resigned his embassy and returned to Paris.

Three years went by before the Count had reached the period of grief which brings resignation. Then a strange feeling took possession of him; he felt a yearning desire to see Victorine again; she seemed like the only link on earth between him and his dead wife. He knew her connections—it was easy to find her out. She had grown younger—more beautiful in the profound retirement in which she lived. She received the Count with the deepest emotion. Her manner had acquired subdued gentleness that gave her the charm she had lacked. The Count found his only consolation in her society. Here he could talk of Helene, for Victorine had known her in the days of her childhood and girlhood even before he had loved her.

A year after he had met Mme Sternberg, she became Countess de Cardoville.

Peace and happiness again brightened the Count's life. The Countess loved him deeply, passionately; not a shadow ever arose between them. They had been married four years, when one day, the Countess being absent, the Count requiring a miniature he had given her for a large portrait of himself, proceeded to her dressing room to ask it of her maid. The maid was not there, but the key was in the cabinet where her jewels were kept. Horace opened it, and searching for the miniature, his hand touched a spring. Silently, the drawer slid back and revealed, O Heavens! his senses seemed to leave him as he gazed—the Cardoville diamonds, diamonds his Helene had worn on the night of the murder. Their startling brightness was a torch to light the past.

"O, God, she—she who has taken Helene's place, has been her destroyer."

He turned, Victorine stood gazing over his shoulder. She had comprehended all as she beheld the diamonds, and as he turned she fell on her knees.

"Forgive me, it was my love for you that prompted me."

The Count pushed her from him with a shriek of horror. Ten days later, he was borne to his grave, having died in the midst of the wildest raving of brain fever.

The Countess' secret is safe—no punishment awaits her crime that is, from society or the law. But her crime was fruitless—it killed not only the woman she hated, but the man she loved, and she lives alone with the memory of the past ever clear and vivid. Death would be a mercy, but she fears to die.

ALLEN'S

LUNG BALSAM!

The Remedy for Curing

CONSUMPTION, COUGHS, COLDS,

Asthma, Croup,

Diseases of the Throat, Bronchitis, Pains and Oppression of the Chest and Lungs, Difficult Breathing and all the Diseases of the Pulmonary Organs.

ITS ACTION IS EXPECTORANT, ALTERATIVE, SUDORIFIC, SEDATIVE, DIAPHORETIC AND DIURETIC, which renders it one of the most valuable remedies known for curing diseases of the lungs. It excites expectoration, and causes the lungs to throw off the phlegm or mucus; CHANGES THE SECRETIONS AND PURIFIES THE BLOOD, heals the irritated parts; gives strength to the digestive organs; brings the liver to its proper action, and imparts strength to the whole system. Such is the immediate and satisfactory effect, that it is WARRANTED TO BREAK UP THE MOST DISTRESSING COUGH IN A FEW HOURS' TIME, if not of too long standing. IT IS WARRANTED to give entire satisfaction even in the MOST CONFIRMED CASES OF CONSUMPTION. IT IS WARRANTED NOT to produce costiveness (which is the case with most remedies) or affect the head, as it contains no Opium in any form. IT IS WARRANTED TO BE PERFECTLY HARMLESS to the most delicate child, although it is an active and powerful remedy for restoring the system. THERE IS NO REAL NECESSITY FOR SO MANY DEATHS BY CONSUMPTION, when ALLEN'S LUNG BALSAM will prevent it if only taken in time.

"CONSTITUTION WATER,"

THE ONLY REMEDY FOR DISEASES OF THE

BLADDER, KIDNEYS,

Gravel, Dropsical Swellings,

GENITAL DEBILITY, ETC.

THE ASTONISHING SUCCESS WHICH HAS ATtended this invaluable medicine renders it the most valuable one ever discovered. No language can convey an adequate idea of the immediate and almost miraculous change which it occasions in the debilitated and shattered system. In fact, it stands unrivalled as a remedy for the permanent cure of the maladies above mentioned, and also—

DIABETES, IMPOTENCY,
LOSS OF MUSCULAR ENERGY,
PHYSICAL PROSTRATION,
INDIGESTION,
SEMINAL WEAKNESS,
GLEET, LEUCORRHŒA, ALBUS,

And in every disease in any way connected with the disorder or decay of the Procreative Functions. Persons about to marry, if conscious of any weakness, should take the

CONSTITUTION WATER,

Whether broken down by excess, weak by nature, or impaired by sickness, the unstrung and relaxed organization is at once rebraced, revivified and built up. Well may this celebrated medicine be called the

MEDICAL WONDER.

The stooping, trembling victim of depression and debility becomes a new man, he stands erect, he moves with a firm step, his mind, which was previously sunk in gloom of an almost idiotic apathy, becomes bright and active, and he goes forth regenerated, conscious of new vigor.—The medicine reaches the CONSTITUTION itself, and restores it to its normal condition.
